

Assemblymember McMahon is advocating for working families and first responders

“During these difficult times, frontline workers and first responders have risen to the challenge to keep us safe. It’s more important than ever that we stand up for our local heroes. I secured funding and passed legislation that protects these essential workers and ensures families have the support and resources they need.”

Assemblymember McMahon is spearheading legislation to protect our workers

Assemblymember McMahon has long been a staunch advocate for working families, frontline workers and first responders. She:

- Sponsored and passed the Equal Pay Law, which affirms that wage discrimination is illegal in New York and ensures that every employee is paid what they deserve based on the work that they do (Ch. 93 of 2019)
- Passed a comprehensive paid sick leave and employee benefits bill for those under a mandatory or precautionary quarantine order due to COVID-19 (Ch. 25 of 2020)
- Sponsored a bill to increase disability benefits for volunteer firefighter and ambulance personnel (A.10300-A)
- Passed a law that provides death benefits to families of frontline workers who lost their lives to the COVID-19 pandemic (Ch. 89 of 2020)
