Dear Neighbor,

As the holiday season approaches, many of our neighbors are feeling the strain of rising food costs and uncertainty surrounding SNAP benefits and other food programs. Food insecurity affects families, seniors, and individuals in Western New York year-round, but the need is especially urgent now.

Local food pantries are working tirelessly to meet the growing demand, providing essential groceries and meals for those who need them most. If you are able, your donations—whether food, funds, or volunteer time—make a direct and meaningful impact.

Together, we can help ensure that every household in our community has access to nutritious food and the comfort of a shared meal this season.

Sincerely,

Laven M. McMahon Assemblymember Karen McMahon
